Message from the Dean

Dear Graduating Class of 2021,

A year ago, when we canceled commencement and convocation, we fully expected to have an in-person graduation one year later. Little did we know about the lasting impact that the COVID-19 pandemic would have on all aspects of our lives for many months. Once again, we will not gather in person, even as we hope that vaccinations will help pave the way to a more normal future. Though our graduation ceremonies will be virtual, we hope that you will also celebrate your achievement with family and friends in a more personal and appropriate way.

We as faculty and staff in the College of Family, Home, and Social Sciences are disappointed not to hear your name read before the gathered crowd of family and friends, greet each of you personally, shake your hand, and congratulate you on your accomplishment. Please know that our thoughts and prayers are with all of you. We are hopeful that your BYU degree and your BYU experience will be a foundational blessing to you for the rest of your life.

You are prepared with an excellent education that, as the Aims of a BYU Education states, has been spiritually strengthening, intellectually enlarging, and character building. It should now lead to the fourth aim of a BYU education: lifelong learning and service. As with the Perpetual Education Fund, you can give back through your service and other contributions to help bless the lives of future BYU students and others in your circle of influence.

Take to heart what President Spencer W. Kimball said more than 45 years ago in his address “The Second Century of Brigham Young University”:

As the Church grows global and becomes more and more multicultural, a smaller and smaller percentage of all our LDS college-age students will attend BYU. . . . It is a privileged group who are able to come here. We do not intend to neglect the needs of the other Church members wherever they are, but those who do come here have an even greater follow-through responsibility to make certain that the Church’s investment in them provides dividends through service and dedication to others as they labor in the Church and in the world elsewhere.

Based on my own experience as one who sat in your place many years ago, I testify that if you follow this counsel, you will be personally blessed, you will minister to many individuals, and you will make a difference in the world.

Sincerely,

Benjamin M. Ogles
Dean, College of Family, Home, and Social Sciences

Keynote Speaker

Setema Gali (BS sociology, '01; MPA, '14) was an All-Conference defensive end and team captain for the BYU Cougars football team and a Super Bowl champion with the New England Patriots. He is also a living example of winning after the game.

Since retiring from the NFL, Setema has built world-class businesses and teams in the areas of mortgages and real estate, direct sales, consulting, coaching, and mentoring. He has faced hardship, the fall of markets, and the loss of a business he built, and yet he has proven time and time again that a mindset and discipline aligned with a holy cause can restore you to the top of your game. Setema has authored several books and is the creator and leader of the Prosperity Revolution—a global movement of men and women who are ruthlessly committed to living powerfully and creating results that matter.

Setema loved his professors and the football program at BYU. He recalls that his entire BYU experience was perfect for him and instrumental in helping him learn and grow to become the man he is today. He credits the environment, the atmosphere, the Church, the activities, the culture, the campus, and everything in between at BYU for shaping his paradigm and testimony and for preparing him to fulfill his mission on this planet.

Setema considers serving a full-time mission for The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Micronesia and Guam from 1995 to 1997 and marrying his wife, Laina, to be his two most important life decisions. The mission was massive in setting his life trajectory, and his marriage is a solid foundation of trust and endless possibilities. He and Laina currently live in Orange County, California, with their three sons. Setema says that being a dad changes everything—it has shaped him in ways that business and football could not have.

Department Valedictorians

George Reuben Garcia III is an economics and mathematics major with minors in political science, philosophy, and Latin American studies. Throughout his undergraduate studies, George conducted research with various professors, including Professors C. Arden Pope III in the Economics Department and Darren Hawkins in the Political Science Department. With Dr. Pope, George studied the association between body mass and mortality and the association between air pollution and both health and Twitter sentiment. With Dr. Hawkins, he helped create a large database of development-related impact evaluations and studied various aspects of Latin American governance. George was a teaching assistant for various professors, he cofounded and copresided over the BYU Interfaith Club, he interned as a research fellow at the Humane League Labs, and he took part in the Rwanda-Uganda Peacebuilding and Conflict Resolution Study Abroad. He is passionate about the effective altruism movement and hopes to spend his life studying how to most effectively do good. After graduating, George will be a predoctoral research fellow at Stanford Law School, after which he plans to begin a PhD in economics. He is grateful for the many friends, mentors, and family members—especially his wife, Helen Barton—who have supported him throughout his time at BYU. The son of George Reuben Garcia Jr. and Amy Christine Thomas, George grew up in Pueblo, Colorado, and is a first-generation college student.

Eliza Crump Heim was drawn to her major in family and consumer sciences education because of her belief in educational equity and its ability to change individual lives and the world. During her time in the School of Family Life, Eliza worked as a teaching or research assistant for Professors Dawna Baugh, Chad Gibbs, and Natalie Hancock, all of whom gave her valuable experience and mentorship. Eliza would like to thank those mentors, as well as her husband, family, and friends, for always encouraging her and making her time at BYU feel like home. She is looking forward to beginning her teaching career this fall at Mapleton Junior High School in Mapleton, Utah. Eliza is the youngest of Stan and Holly Crump's five children and grew up in Lehi, Utah. She enjoys rollerblading, sewing, playing soccer, camping, and being with family and friends.

Emley Holcombe is graduating with a major in sociology and a minor in global women's studies. While she initially started at BYU in the Theatre and Media Arts Department, her freshman Introduction to Sociology class soon convinced her that the Sociology Department was her home. While at BYU, Emley had the privilege of working as a teaching assistant for Professors Eric Dahlin and Melissa Jones. She is currently researching with Dr. Jones on the topic of child abuse outcomes by gender and will present this research at the American Society of Criminology Annual Meeting in November with a plan for publication. She has been accepted into the BYU sociology master's program and is excited to begin this fall. Emley would like to thank her mentors and the other professors she has had the pleasure of learning from and working with. She would also like to thank her parents and husband for their endless support and guidance throughout her time at BYU. Emley is the third child of Nick and Charity Holcombe and grew up in Morton, Illinois.

Samuel J. Jensen is an anthropology major with an emphasis in archaeology and a minor in Latin American studies. While studying archaeology, Sam had the opportunity to learn about people from all over the world and throughout time. He participated in archaeological excavations and research in Chihuahua, Mexico; the American Southwest; and the Great Basin. He also completed an undergraduate thesis chemically characterizing obsidian stone tools and artifacts recovered from Ancestral Puebloan sites in southeastern Utah. This research was accepted into several conferences and received the Redd Center's award in the 2020 Mary Lou Fulton Mentored Student Research Conference. Sam plans to continue his education by earning a PhD in archaeology and is waiting to hear back from several programs across the country. He would like to thank his family and friends, as well as the faculty members in the Department of Anthropology, for their continued support and encouragement. The oldest child of Brett and Tonia Jensen, Sam was raised in Provo, Utah, and has always had a love of learning.

Hovan Lawton is a history major who spent four years as an American Heritage TA and interned with both the Joseph Smith Papers Project and the Wilford Woodruff Papers Project. Much of his undergraduate research has focused on Western US history and Mormon studies, including his capstone paper, which won the Eugene E. Campbell Award in Utah History. He will continue his research at Utah State University in the history MA program this fall. Hovan is proud of his Latino heritage—his mother is from El Salvador—and has enjoyed learning more about Hispanic culture through pursuing Spanish studies as a secondary major and Latin American studies as a minor. This additional knowledge will help him view Western and Mormon studies in their global context. He is grateful for the quality education that BYU has provided him and for the mentoring he received from knowledgeable and supportive faculty. Hovan is the son of Jonathan and Jenny Lawton, is the oldest of three children, and is from Provo, Utah. He served a mission in southern Chile and enjoys hiking, traveling, cooking, and spending time with family and friends.

Alyssa Stockard Lee considered nearly every major at BYU, but when she found neuroscience, she knew it was exactly what she wanted to study. One of Alyssa's favorite experiences at BYU has been working as a research assistant in Professor Scott Steffensen's lab. She has spent the past three years there studying substance abuse and addiction. In conjunction with that research, she has presented posters at neuroscience conferences at both the local and national levels. She is looking forward to beginning medical school in the fall. Alyssa has loved her time at BYU and would like to thank her professors, classmates, friends, and family. Most of all, she would like to thank her parents, Tom and Julie Stockard, and her wonderful husband, Alex, for supporting and encouraging her every step of the way. Alyssa was raised in Fallon, Nevada, and is the youngest of four children. In her free time, she loves to listen to audiobooks, take walks outside, and work on craft projects.

Haley Anna Morris is a geography major who is grateful for the spatial awareness and holistic view of the world that geography has given her. These skills and new ways of thinking have been integral for her success in her second major, Russian. The amazing faculty members in the Geography Department and the German and Russian Department have helped her realize her passions and potential, and she will always be grateful for their influence. She is thankful for her father, who has always encouraged her to dig deeper and learn more about the world. Starting in the fall, she will combine her two loves—geography and Russian—by attending the University of North Carolina to pursue a master's degree in global studies with an emphasis in Russian, Eurasian, and Eastern European studies. From Monroe, Louisiana, Haley had her love of geography instilled in her from an early age thanks to her mother, who also graduated from the BYU Geography Department.

Sydney Rasmussen is a psychology major with a developmental and clinical emphasis. She has always been interested in human behavior but came to truly uncover her love for psychology during her freshman year. While at BYU, Sydney has worked closely with professors researching a range of topics within psychology. Her favorite and most rewarding work, however, was examining the relationship between body image and Latter-day Saint culture with Professor Sarah Coyne. Sydney's honors thesis examined the relationship between body size and perceived righteousness among Latter-day Saints, revealing how weight stigma manifests within the specific faith community. She presented her research and a personal essay at conferences on campus. She also worked as a BYU first-year peer mentor and is very grateful to have served so many incredible freshmen. Sydney would like to thank her family and all the excellent mentors she has had for their support and guidance. She is the fourth of six children born to Greg and Lee Ann Rasmussen and grew up in Franklin, Tennessee.

Heather Kristina Walker is a political science major with a minor in sociology and an emphasis in legal studies. She declared political science as her major in her application to BYU and never looked back. During her time at BYU, she has enjoyed working as a teaching assistant and research assistant for various professors. She was the recipient of the Garth Jones Scholarship and spent her last two years of college as a Wheatley Scholar. Heather interned in Washington, DC, for the Department of Justice, was a fellow at BYU's Center for the Study of Elections and Democracy, and, this last year, was an author for the BYU Prelaw Review. Heather would especially like to thank all of the wonderful mentors and professors she was privileged to work with and learn from during her time at BYU, as well as her family and friends for their support and encouragement. She is the youngest child born to Julia and Verdon Walker and grew up in Pleasant Grove, Utah.
